CONCEPT

The Central European Academy has launched a new workshop series starting in the fall of 2023, which will be held every half year, typically at a different location. The current two-day workshop is a collaboration between the Budapest-based Central European Academy and the Pan-European University in Bratislava. With a total of 29 junior researchers from the former institution and more students joining in from the latter, this event offers the opportunity to listen into a diverse array of presentations across six panels. Participants will receive valuable feedback from seven professors representing five countries, enriching their research skills and networking prospects. This workshop serves as a platform not only for constructive critique but also for fostering international cooperation between institutions, marking a significant step forward in academic exchange. This two-day workshop represents a collaborative effort between the Budapest-based Central European Academy and the Pan-European University in Bratislava.
